

Modern Slavery Act 2015: Modern Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement 2026 to 2027

In the face of a global crisis that undermines fundamental human rights and human dignity, the Modern Slavery Act stands as a beacon of hope and accountability. Enacted to combat the grave menace of modern slavery, human trafficking, and forced labour, this legislation embodies our collective commitment to eradicating one of the most heinous crimes against humanity. Modern slavery, in all its forms, is a dark stain on our global society, affecting millions of vulnerable individuals across continents. By enforcing rigorous standards of transparency and ethical conduct, the Modern Slavery Act empowers organizations to play a pivotal role in dismantling the networks of exploitation. At Griffith Foods, we recognize the urgency of this cause and stand firm in our resolve to ensure that our business and supply chains remain untainted by this appalling practice. This statement details our unwavering dedication to ethical practices, legal compliance, and positive social impact as we join the global community in the fight against modern slavery.

This statement is published in accordance with section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (MSA) and constitutes Griffith Foods Limited ("Griffith Foods") slavery and human trafficking statement, for the financial year ending 30th December 2027.

It sets out the steps that Griffith Foods has undertaken, and continues to take, to understand and minimise the potential risk of modern slavery or human trafficking in its business or supply chain.

Griffith Foods adopts a zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery, human trafficking, forced labour, bonded labour, child labour, and all forms of servitude. We are committed to acting ethically, transparently, and with integrity in all business dealings and relationships. We implement and enforce effective systems and controls to ensure modern slavery is not taking place within our business or supply chains.

OUR ORGANISATION

Griffith Foods UK Limited is a wholly owned subsidiary of Griffith Foods Inc. We are a global manufacturer of food ingredients, supplying taste and texture solutions to food industry customers including food processors, restaurant operators, and grocery retailers.

Our operations are primarily business-to-business within the food ingredients manufacturing sector.

OUR POLICIES

We are committed to ensuring that there is no modern slavery or human trafficking in our supply chains or in any part of our business. We operate internal policies to ensure that we are acting ethically and with integrity in every part of our business. Our Ethical Trading Standards Policy sets out our zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery in our business and also that of our suppliers and sub-contractors. The policy is displayed on our company intranet, noticeboards throughout our offices and communicated to our suppliers and sub-contractors. Our Ethical trading commitment is supported by a number of employee rights policies.

We have a Sustainability Report which highlights our company's continuous improvement approach to maintaining sustainability in every part of our business. Our commitment to sustainability in our supply chain is demonstrated by the programme, "Griffith Sustainably Sourced", which ensures that farmers who we source from are receiving fair wages, and safe working environments.

Additionally, we have a Code of Ethics and Business Conduct ("Code") which sets out the company's long-standing commitment to our company and suppliers operating lawfully and with the highest standards of social responsibility.

OUR SUPPLY CHAIN

Griffith Foods operates a supplier policy and maintains a preferred supplier list, ensuring the integrity of our supply chain is paramount in our fight against modern slavery. Our comprehensive supply chain mapping efforts involve meticulous research and analysis. We begin by identifying regions and industries globally that are known for exploitation and forced labour. For instance, we focus our scrutiny on regions with documented cases of labour abuse, lack of workers' rights protections, or areas marked by social unrest and poverty. In specific instances, our attention is particularly keen on sectors such as agriculture, manufacturing, and construction, which historically have been hotspots for modern slavery practices.

We conduct due diligence on all suppliers before allowing them to become a preferred supplier. Our supplier Approval Management System includes a risk assessment process which allows us to determine which of our potential suppliers are suitable for approval for use within the business.

We have conducted a full audit of the recruitment agency that supplies our factory with temporary labour. To ensure compliance with UK law and Company policy the agency used is required to adhere to our Ethical Trading Standards policy relating to the supply of agency labour. We also require the agency to confirm their compliance with the Modern Slavery Act in writing.

Our audit includes a review of the contractual agreement between the agency and their employee, a review of their right to work documentation, training records, policies and specific attention to the implementation of their own modern slavery statement.

Our Ethical Trading Standards Policy forms part of our contract with all suppliers and sub-contractors. The Site Manager and Human Resources Manager are responsible for implementing and monitoring the Ethical Trading standard. Any concerns as to whether the Ethical Trading Standards are being met are referred to the Human Resources Department.

Additionally, we have a Supplier Requirement Handbook which sets out our zero-tolerance approach to modern slavery. We require our suppliers to sign and return a copy of the Supplier Acceptance Response Form and a copy of our Ethical Trading Policy to ensure that they comply with it. Their compliance declaration is kept on record. Any issues are referred to the buyers to follow up with the supplier if appropriate. We encourage suppliers to return any copies of their own codes of conduct & also expect them to comply with GFSI accreditations wherever possible.

Griffith Foods operates a formal Supplier Approval and Management System designed to ensure the integrity and transparency of our supply chain.

We undertake risk-based due diligence before onboarding suppliers, including assessment of geographic risk, sector risk and product-specific risk. Attention is given to industries and regions identified as higher risk for labour exploitation, including agriculture and food manufacturing supply chains.

As part of our commitment to continuous improvement and responsible sourcing, we are actively working with our suppliers to strengthen sustainability, human rights and ethical governance standards. This includes encouraging and supporting suppliers to obtain independent third-party sustainability assessments, including EcoVadis accreditation, to provide transparent, externally validated evaluation of their environmental, labour and human rights, ethics, and sustainable procurement practices.

Our objective is to progressively increase the proportion of our supplier base that holds EcoVadis accreditation or equivalent recognised sustainability certifications. This supports enhanced supply chain transparency and aligns our modern slavery prevention efforts with our broader ESG strategy.

All suppliers are required to:

- Confirm in writing that they have taken steps to eradicate modern slavery within their business
- Hold their own suppliers accountable for modern slavery risks
- Comply with applicable minimum wage legislation
- Adhere to our Ethical Trading Standards Policy
- Complete our Supplier Acceptance Response Form

Failure to meet these standards may result in corrective action plans, suspension or termination of contract.

TRAINING

All employees are required to complete eLearning training on our Code of Ethics and Business Conduct, which includes awareness of modern slavery risks and reporting mechanisms.

Relevant personnel within Procurement, HR, and site leadership receive additional guidance to ensure they can identify and escalate potential indicators of exploitation within our operations or supply chain.

OUR EFFECTIVENESS IN COMBATING SLAVERY AND HUMAN TRAFFICKING

We have not identified any instances of modern slavery or human trafficking when carrying out our supplier audits and investigations. We will continue to measure the effectiveness of the steps that we are taking to ensure that slavery and/or human trafficking is not taking place within our business or supply chain by:

- Monitoring if any reports are received from employees, the public, or law enforcement agencies to indicate that modern slavery practices have been identified.
- The use of labour monitoring and payroll systems
- The use of grievances mechanisms
- Requiring staff to undertake (MSA) training by a certain date
- Developing a system for supply chain verification
- The level of communication and personal contact with next link in the supply chain
- The completion of audits
